Workplace creativity & innovation

Generate fresh ideas and solve problems a 2 day workshop

This highly participative workshop explores the nature of creativity and shows how to access your own innate creativity. Participants will deliberately be challenged to review existing perspectives and consider alternative ways of working. The emphasis is on pragmatic tools and techniques that work!

Creativity has two parts: thinking, then producing. Innovation is embedded in the creative process. It is the implementation of creative inspiration.

Linda Naiman Peopletalk Magazine 2004

Who should attend?

Anyone who wants to unleash their creativity and that of others to help generate fresh ideas, solve problems and make better decisions.

Your investment

$195 per person plus GST. Includes morning and afternoon teas and all course materials. Excludes lunch and venue hire.

Innovation requires a fresh way of looking at things, an understanding of people, and an entrepreneurial willingness to take risks and to work hard. An idea doesn't become an innovation until it is widely adopted and incorporated into people's daily lives. Most people resist change, so a key part of innovating is convincing other people that your idea is a good one — by enlisting their help, and, in doing so, by helping them see the usefulness of the idea.

A practical approach to learning

The approach to learning throughout this workshop is on showing, doing and experiencing. All of the activities are designed to make specific points. The key techniques will be covered more than once, in different ways to cement the learning. Team learning will be encouraged. Practical techniques to support problem solving, decision making and idea generation are introduced.

Course overview and content

- The need for creativity and innovation. Why do individuals and the organisations they work for need to be creative? What are the benefits? What difference does it make?
- Creativity self-assessment. What creative attributes do you demonstrate?
- Creativity and innovation. Are they different?
- The creativity / innovation process. How the brain works and how this impacts on creativity.
